

A photograph of Mount McKinley, the highest peak in North America, standing majestically against a clear blue sky. In the foreground, a lone climber stands on a snow-covered slope, looking towards the mountain. The mountain's peak is heavily covered in snow and ice, with rocky outcrops visible. The surrounding terrain is rugged and covered in snow.

Mt McKinley – Roof of North America

Mount McKinley

MIT

Matthew

Eric

Mr. Darren

Woody

Danny Walks

Day 0: Anchorage

105 hungry-man-days of food

High entropy

Low entropy

Day 1: Base camp

Avalanche

Day 2: Base camp to 7800 camp

MIT Mechanical
Engineering sophisticated
snow-block removing technology

7800 Camp

West Buttress

Cassin Ridge

West Rib

Valley of Death

Woody

Too cold for birds

Day 3: Ski Hill to 11,600 Camp

11,600 Camp

Team MIT Snow Fortress I

MIT Outing Club

Day 4: Rest at 11,600 Camp

Only snowfall in 2 weeks

Avalanche!

Day 5: Cache at 13,500ft

“Windy” Corner

Cache site – nobody will mistake this flag

11,600 Camp

Day 6: Move to 14,200 Camp

Squirrel Hill

14,200 Camp

Team MIT Snow Fortress II

Day 7: Pick up Cache, watch people ascend fixed lines

>50 people in line for fixed
lines

Day 8: “Rest” day

Edge of the World

6,000 ft drop

Day 9: Move to 17K camp

17,200 Camp

Denali Pass

MIT Snow Fortress III

Day 10: Rest day

Day 11: Summit Day

11am Alpine start

Traverse to Denali Pass

Denali Pass

Summit Ridge

The Top

The Top

17,200 Camp
10pm

Day 12: The Descent

Traffic Jam at
Washburn's Thumb

Free Food!

“Windy” Corner

Sled trouble

The Home Stretch

Day 13: Back to Base Camp

The End

